In Weird Yet True (June 1993), you said Anne Boleyn had six fingers on one hand. Well, my uncle has six fingers on one hand, too. My brother had six fingers on both hands, but he got them cut off. My uncle says that his extra finger is his "lucky finger."

Clarissa now knows news.

Little Clarissa's all grown up. Nickelodeon's know-it-all will be making the move to prime time with a new show on a new network soon. Word is that the series will have her working at a New York City newspaper ....

Double take: If you hadn't noticed, there's a new Conner on

"Roseanne." Sarah Chalke took over the part of blonde

Becky this season, replacing Lecy Goranson, who went off to college last year. See ya, Lecy....

Brand-new

"Dinosaurs" returns to the tube: Robbie Sinclair tells us that he'll be facing "almost certain death" this season. Seems he'll be kidnapped by a monster, stuck in a tar pit and even frozen.

Ah,

the life of a movie star: Fun! Glamour! Freezing cold weather, frostbite, and tons of fruitcake?! Mackenzie Astin, 20, suffered through all that stuff while shooting Iron Will. It's about a real-life 1917 dogsled race. Mackenzie plays Will, a young pioneer who enters the race to win $10,000. Does he win? Mackenzie's not telling, but he did give us this....

D.A.: Since you're from sunny Southern California, was it a shock to film in Minnesota during winter?

Mackenzie: Yeah, the temperature was 20 below. I had to wear a lot of long underwear—sometimes four or five layers. One time, my right ear came close to being frozen stiff!

D.A.: Did the weather make it hard to do some things?

Mackenzie: I had to whistle a tune for the dogs, but sometimes my lips and jaws were frozen and wouldn't work. Made it sort of tough to pucker!

D.A.: We heard you were a star dogsledder by the end of the movie....

A star's life: workin' like a dog!

Mackenzie: I hate to brag, but I kind of got dogsledding down. So well, in fact, that they didn't have to use any stunt doubles! The sled technicians were so impressed, they asked if I wanted to do a real dogsled race with them.

D.A.: Did you get to keep anything cool from the movie?

Mackenzie: A husky named Kita. He played one of the "wheel dogs" in the movie—they're the ones who pull the most weight.

D.A.: We've heard fruitcake plays an important part in the movie. Did you eat a lot of it?

Mackenzie: Yeah, I liked it. I'd be stuck on a mountaintop waiting for the camera crew to set up a shot, and I'd reach into my pack and eat some. I must've eaten about three pounds!

D.A. Hey, Mackenzie, we've got some fruitcake right here. Want some?

Mackenzie: Absolutely not!

Zzzzzzzzz. That's about how exciting movies are these cold winter months. So let's

Elijah Wood just left Hawaii, where he filmed North, about a boy in search of the world's best parents (should be out in June). Now he's in South Carolina shooting The War with Kevin Costner, who plays his dad. It's about kids fighting over a very cool tree house....

see what's in the works for the rest of the year. Batman goes out for number 3! Rumor has it that Robin Williams will play the Riddler....

Jason James Richter is starring in Neverending Story III before making a splash filming Free Willy 2.

You're stuck babysitting the kids down the street, and they're hollering for a video. Before they can reach for Ernest Goes to Camp for the 50th time, pop in one of these videos all of you can enjoy.

Fraggle Rock These partying muppets blow Barney away.
Bugs Bunny's Hare-Brained Hits Bugs at his funny bunny best!

Simply Mad About the Mouse Classic Disney songs in videos by Soul II Soul, L.L. Cool J, Harry Connick Jr. and others.

Don't have a cow,
man, have a Bongo—

Bongo comics, that is. The Bongo line, from Simpsons' creator Matt Groening, just hit the shelves of comics shops everywhere. Here's what's in store for your favorite characters:

Bartman:

Look for a surprise villain who could be Bartman's most fearsome foe ever. (Hint: This villain has already had a few run-ins with Bart in his civilian guise.)

Radioactive Man:

Follow Radioactive Man's adventures as we jump from

1, his 1950s origin, to # 88, the 1962

introduction of Fall-Out Boy and the molten menace of

Lava Man. His adventures in future issues take us to 1973 and then on to the dark and gritty 1980s.

The Simpsons: Get ready for a return confrontation between Bart and the evil Sideshow Bob, along with more mirthful misadventures with Springfield's most mixed-up family.

Itchy & Scratchy: The big news here is that # 2 will be co-written by Dan Castellaneta (the voice of Homer) and his wife, Deb Lacusta. Seems Dan is a comics fan from way back, and who could be better equipped to put words in the Simpsons' mouths?

SPIN DOCTORS

4 NON BLONDES

WHITNEY HOUSTON

aka: Mrs. Bobby Brown

Why She's Cool:

Whitney's sold more than 40 million albums, and thanks to The Bodyguard she's now a movie star, too.

Makin' History: Her version of "I Will Always Love You" from the The Bodyguard soundtrack was number 1 longer than any other song ever—it spent 14 weeks at the top of the Billboard chart.

Whazzup Next: Whitney finishes up her world tour this spring, and she's now reading scripts to decide what movie to do next.

SWV

aka: Sisters With Voices

Alias: Coko (Cheryl Gamble); Taj (Tamara Johnson); and Lelee (Leanne Lyons)

Why They're Kickin':

Everything from phat dance jams ("Right Here") to smooth R&B ballads ("Weak") gave SWV a handful of top-10 hits and made their debut CD, It's About Time, the soundtrack to summer fun '93.

BFF (Before Fame and Fortune): As teenagers, they were so crazy about New Edition they sang the group's songs in the school hallways and once called themselves the Female Edition.

4 NON BLONDES

Shaky Start: The group's first rehearsal was set for 6 p.m. in San Francisco on October 17, 1989; at 5:04 p.m., an earthquake hit the city!

Non Blondes Have More Fun: "Fans don't want to see perfect hair and high heels, they want to see you bust a nerve," says bassist Christa Hillhouse. "I sweat like a hound."

Hats Off to Them: Lead singer Linda Perry wears cool, funky hats "to make me look taller."

AEROSMITH

Get a Grip: Steven Tyler, on Aerosmith's 11th album: "Some of it revolts me, some of it sickens me, some of it's the best."

Too Much 'Tude:

Aerosmith fired Megadeth, their opening act on their recent tour, cuz they had way too much attitude. When Megadeth lead singer

Dave Mustaine complained about being unhappy, Tyler said, "We'd like to help you out. Which way did you come in?"

REBA MCENTIRE

Rank: Current queen of country.

Claim to the Title: Reba's recorded more than 20 albums since her debut in 1978. And she's won nearly 40 music awards, including Country Music Awards' Entertainer of the Year.

Screen Queen:

Her popularity in music and videos has led to an acting career in such big-screen and TV films as Tremors and "The Man From Left Field." This spring Reba appears in the film North, with Elijah Wood and Bruce Willis.

D.A.'s Top 10

Our picks for 1993's best songs:

- Janet Jackson, "That's the Way Love Goes"
- Duran Duran, "Ordinary World"
- Blind Melon, "No Rain"
- Tag Team, "Whoomp! (There It Is)"
- The Proclaimers, "I'm Gonna Be (500 Miles)"
- Positive K, "I Got a Man"
- Alan Jackson, "Chattahoochee"
- Robin S., "Show Me Love"
- SWV, "Weak"
- Soul Asylum, "Runaway Train"

They're not stars yet, but here are D.A.'s picks for kickin' artists to watch for in future surveys.

POP/ROCK

Xscape may not be able to xscape stardom. Their first single, "Just Kickin' It," was an R&B number 1 in just six weeks, and their CD, Hummin' Comin' at Ya, is expected to be a top seller. . .

Zhane (pronounced ja-nay) is two smooth sistahs with a cool look and a silky sound. Their first single, "Hey Mr. D.J.," was a huge hit. Their first CD is due this spring. . .

They've been on the alternative scene for years, but now the Lemonheads have a shot at stardom with Come On Feel the Lemonheads. . .

New artist Joi tries to become the next Janet Jackson with her R&B-flavored CD, due this winter.

COUNTRY

Rick Trevino is a 22-year-old cowboy crooner with a double shot at stardom—he just released two CDs, one in English (Rick Trevino) and one in Spanish (Dos Mundos). . .

Lari White's last CD, Lead Me Not, got music insiders stoked about her singing-songwriting ability. They expect the rest of us to go crazy for her new CD this spring. . .

On their self-titled CD, Twister Alley plays a new kind of country with a strong bass beat, so it's made for boot-scootin' or even regular dancing. . .

He went to the same high school as country stars Mark Chesnutt and Tracy Byrd, so Clay Walker

has some big boots to fill. Even so, his debut CD Clay Walker is selling like crazy.

It all began when

I pushed the start button on my new asciiPad SG-6.

There was this gigantic flash, and suddenly, I was floating in space. Just then,

hundreds of vicious alligators solar-surfed past me, heading towards Earth. If you've never seen an alligator with an attitude, trust me, they're scary. Lots of teeth, and they're not vegetarians. "We're sick of our swamp planet," they snarled. "We're taking Nebraska!"

I live in California, so I'm thinking, "So what?"— but then I remembered my buddy Travis, from Omaha*. Besides, sooner or later, I knew they'd add Los Angeles to the menu. So, the fate of the World was in my hands. Actually, a Fighter Stick was in my hands—so I flicked on the slow motion control to buy some time. Just then, a spy satellite flew past, with —get this—a laser cannon. I plugged the cord in, switched on turbo fire and blasted

those lizards at over 30 shots
per second.

You're in your room with the door shut tight. You turn up your stereo full blast, grab a hairbrush to use as a microphone and stand in front of the mirror screaming to the music. Yeah, you're in rock star heaven.

Enjoy your fantasy.

But what if you want to be a music star for real? D.A. followed a fresh new singer, Bobby Ross Avila, for seven months to find the inside story behind —

Adventures

[THE MAKING OF A MUSIC STAR]

WRITTEN BY Deborah Russell
and Deborah Barnes

Anthony Pardines

[THE CONTRACT AND RECORDING]

A wannabe star first has to get his music heard. He starts by making a "demo tape," a recording of several songs that showcase his style. He then sends the demo tape to record companies (known as "labels" in music business slang). If one of the companies likes the way his tape sounds, the artist signs a contract with them to make records.

Bobby signed with Perspective Records, and here's how his deal works: Perspective agrees to give Bobby lots of money (an "advance") to make records. In return Perspective gets part of the money the album makes when it sells. One hitch: Bobby has to pay back the advance out of his share of the album's profits.

Now the fun part...making music. With advice from his manager and record company executives, the artist chooses the songs he wants on his album. Then he heads for the studio.

Each song is made from "tracks" of tape—guitar is on one track, vocals on another, drums on another.

The producer oversees the recording and directs how the album will sound. Producers may suggest using different instruments or making one track louder than another. A producer then "mixes" these tracks to make a final master tape.

It can take from six weeks to a couple of years to record a CD. After several months, Bobby's finished. He has 17 songs for an album he calls My Destiny.

“Smile!” Flash! “Big smile!”

Flash! “Great!” Flash!

It seems as if artists are always having their picture taken. A new artist needs photos long before he becomes a big star, because the record company has to get the word out before his album hits the streets.

A lot of this work is done by the publicist, a person whose job is to get the artist's name in magazines, newspapers and on TV. Publicists send photos and information, called “press kits,” to reporters, music critics, TV producers and radio stations, hoping that they'll do stories about the artist. Publicists also arrange press interviews and public appearances for the artist at places where it's likely lots of people will hear his music.

]PHOTOS AND PUBLICITY[

]THE VIDEO[

Since MTV came along in 1981, music videos have become a very important tool for selling music: They show the artist's personality and style and show him off to a bigger audience. And a great video can help turn a song into a megahit.

The first decision: what single to release off the album. (The date a record goes on sale is the "release date.") Sometimes the record itself is called a "release.") Bobby and the Perspective staff decided to release the single "All That I Do." Next, they hired a director and production crew to make a video for the song. Here the camera crew gets a shot of Bobby lifting off in a helicopter as he lip-synchs the song lyrics. Later a video editor will make sure his lips match the words.

Once the video's finished, the label's promotion staff works to get it on TV. Bobby's video ends up airing on the video channel BET (Black Entertainment Television).

Would you buy a CD by an artist you thought was geeky? Probably not. That's the idea behind marketing: It means presenting the artist in a way that people like so they'll buy his CD. The product manager, who works at the label, is one of the people who works closely with the artist to promote the artist's record (known as the "product" in the record business). Product managers may help the artist define a style or "image" to match his music. They also make sure that everyone—from the label to the photographer to the publicist—knows what the artist's image is so audiences will get used to seeing him a certain way. (For example, it would be totally weird if a singer grunged out on the album cover, then wore a tuxedo in his video.)

Product managers also work with other departments at the record company. For example, they may meet with the advertising department to decide where the album should be advertised. They also help convince TV shows, radio stations and video channels to feature the artist and play his music.

Here Bobby and his dancers appear on a local TV show.

] MARKETING [

"Live! In concert...."

One of the best ways to get people interested in an artist is to let them see him in person. After the record company targets an audience, the artist has to perform at lots of concerts and make plenty of public appearances to turn that audience into frenzied fans.

Bobby's label thinks he'll be most popular with teenagers, so one tour takes him to more than 30 high schools on the West Coast. At the end of each concert, a Perspective staff member hands out flyers with a toll-free number to call and hear Bobby's music over the phone—before the CD is even on sale.

]PERFORMANCES[

Because concert tours are an important way to promote an artist and his music, a new artist has to spend a lot of time on the road. That means different hotel rooms in different cities and towns almost every night. In spite of swimming pools and room service, hotel life can be a drag.

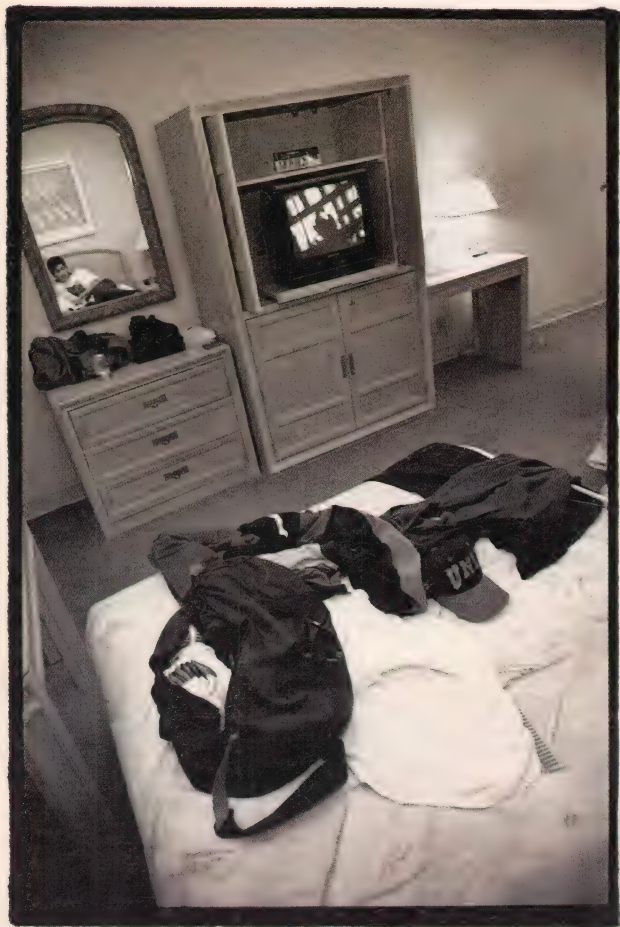

After the promotion and touring for an album slows down, the artist starts working on the next album, and the whole business starts all over again.

So did Bobby Ross Avila make it to music stardom?

You're the audience... you tell us.

Meanwhile, Bobby is spending a lot of time writing songs and practicing the piano, bass and drums. All that practice will come in handy as he gets ready for the next album, the next video, the next promotional tour, the next time onstage....

Hey.

We've got a major experiment contest going down in the A-ZONE. MC<sup>2</sup> says she's going to prove that by drinking hot cocoa with a straw, you have less chance of burning your tongue. Chiphead says he's going to prove that his dog Dip won't move when you pull a blanket out from under her. And me—I'm going to prove you don't need film to make movies! The showdown begins on Page 63. But first, read my answers to your questions.

How long can a person live?

Cortney Tanner, 9
Santa Maria, CA

According to birth records, the longest most humans can live is 113 years.

It's really rare for someone to live past that—only one person in named Shigechiyo Izumi lived longer than anyone—so far. He died in 1986 at a really ripe old age of 120 years, 237 days.

Why do dogs kick their legs when you scratch their stomachs?

Angel, 10, and Rita Disberry, 12
Garden Grove, CA

Because they're weird. Just joking—it's normal for most dogs to do that. Veterinarians call it the scratch reflex. It's just like when a doctor hits your knee with a little hammer and your leg kicks, even though you didn't mean to move it. If you scratch most dogs anywhere from their chests to their tummies, those back legs will start going.

But don't worry if your dog won't kick her legs—not all dogs have the scratch reflex.

She'd probably still like it if you scratched her, though.

What part and type of a tree is used for making paper?

Eric Larson, 12
Schaumburg, IL

Hey, Eric, that's two questions for the price of one! To make paper, first the branches are removed and the bark is stripped off the tree trunks. Then the trunks get mashed into a pulp by grinding them up and applying heat and chemicals. Then the pulp gets mixed with water. A machine flattens this pulpy mixture and dries it out. Voilà—paper!

Trees used to make paper are aspen, beech, birch, fir, gum, hemlock, oak, pine and spruce. Paper is also made out of bamboo, cotton, sugarcane, wheat and rice straws. Think about that next time you chew on a spit wad!

That's it for this month.
'Til next time, play hard and think deep!

"It's more than a

It's my personal life

Okay kids, quick reminder. There is a food as irresistible as me. That's right, WHISKAS® brand cat food. Cats prefer WHISKAS® because it's made with USDA-approved beef and other top ingredients.

Prove It!

Hey. We're ready. In this corner, MC<sup>2</sup>. In that corner, Chip. All over the place, me, Joe Rocket. We're going to show you three totally cool things you can prove with stuff right in your house. Your friends will be so amazed they'll probably faint. Your little bro will never give you attitude again. At the end, vote for the experiment you think is the coolest.

Chip Proves:

When Your Dog Is Lying on Your Blanket, He's Not Going Anywhere.

If something heavy is lying on something light and you whip the light thing away really fast, the heavy thing won't move. (Magicians perform this trick using dishes on a tablecloth.) The scientific principle is inertia, which means the force it takes to move the light thing isn't strong enough to make the heavy thing move. I can't find Dip, so I'll show you how to prove this with some pennies and a strip of newspaper.

YOU'LL NEED:

- a strip of newspaper long enough to reach over the rim of the glass and hang over the edge
- a heavy water glass
- 2 pennies
- a ruler

1. Put one end of the strip of paper over the rim of the glass, as shown.

2. Balance the two pennies on top of the paper, on the rim of the glass. Make sure the pennies are balanced on the rim, not supported by the paper.

3. Being careful not to move the coins, lift the free end of the paper so that it is horizontal.

4. Hit the paper with a ruler about 1 1/2 inches from the edge of the glass.

Speed is important. After a few tries, you should be able to whip the paper out from under the coins, leaving them balanced on the edge of the glass.
Ta da!

Joe Rocket proves:

You Don't Have to Be Old, Bald and Live in Hollywood to Make Movies.

It'll really blow your friends away when you show them you can make a movie without film. All you have to do is make pictures move really fast. You can do that by making a toy called a thaumatrope.

YOU'LL NEED:

stiff cardboard
glue scissors string needle

AND special pullout with circle diagram to the right →

Experiments adapted from:
Scienceworks, 65
Experiments That Introduce the Fun and Wonder of Science from the Ontario Science Centre.

1. You can make two thaumatropes, using the special pullout to the right. "A" puts DISNEY ADVENTURES in an oval. "B" puts Megavolt behind bars.

2. Cut out the two paper circles marked A<sub>1</sub> and A<sub>2</sub>.

3. Cut out a cardboard circle the same size. (You can use one of the paper circles you just cut out to trace a circle on a piece of cardboard.)

4. Glue the paper circles to the cardboard circle, one on each side. The arrows should point in the same direction.

5. Carefully punch tiny holes with a needle where the dots appear and thread string through them as shown.

6. Holding the ends of the strings out straight, twirl the strings between your fingers. The disk will then twirl. Watch DISNEY ADVENTURES appear in the colored oval.

7. Now repeat the above steps for the other set of circles marked B<sub>1</sub> and B<sub>2</sub>. See Megavolt end up behind bars.

Drinking Cocoa With a Straw Could Help You Avoid a Burned Tongue.

I'll let ya in on a little secret—the cocoa at the bottom of your mug is always cooler than the cocoa at the top. That's 'cause hot liquid always rises to the top. So if you use a straw, you'll suck up the cooler cocoa on the bottom. This means less chance of a burned tongue! You want proof? Try this hot experiment.

YOU'LL NEED:

a piece of string
about a foot long
a small bottle
a large jar
food coloring

Now it's your turn.

Try the experiments, then write to us at the A-ZONE and let us know whose is the best. Write to:

Joe Rocket, Master of All Knowledge, and his tricky sidekicks Chip and MC², DISNEY ADVENTURES,
500 South Buena Vista Street,
Burbank, California 91521-6018.

We'll play hard and think deep while we wait for your answers!

1. Tie the string around the neck of the small bottle.
2. Fill the large jar with cold water.
3. Fill the small bottle with hot water and quickly stir in enough food coloring to make a majorly bright color.
4. Use the string to gently lower the small bottle into the large jar filled with cold water. Try not to let the bottle tip. As the bottle drops, it will release a colored fountain of hot water. Even after it's sitting on the bottom of the jar, it'll still spout out bright liquid. Soon all the hot, colored water will be floating on top of the jar!

A full-page background photograph of Wayne Gretzky in his Los Angeles Kings uniform, wearing jersey number 99. He is on the ice, holding a hockey stick, with a referee in a black and white striped shirt behind him. The scene is set in an arena with spectators in the background.

By James Buckley Jr.

The Great
One

Wayne Gretzky is simply the best hockey player ever (see box). If "The Great One" is on your team, you win. He won four Stanley Cup championships with the Edmonton Oilers, then moved to Los Angeles and led the L.A. Kings to their first Stanley Cup final ever!

Gretzky, 32, is easy to find on the ice—he usually has the puck, he wears the highest number (99), and he always tucks his jersey under his right hip pad, a lucky charm since his school days. Off the ice, he likes lots of other sports: He owns part of a Canadian Football League team, race horses, and the famous Honus Wagner 1910 baseball card—the world's most valuable piece of sports memorabilia!

Gretzky Factz

- Holds or shares 58 NHL records, including most points in a career (2,373) and in a season (215).
- Has nine Most Valuable Player awards.
- Led the league in scoring 10 times.

the Rink

Other than Gretzky, no one swings a stick like SuperMario—Pittsburgh Penguins' center Mario Lemieux. "He's the best I've ever coached," says former Pittsburgh coach Scotty Bowman, the winningest coach in the NHL. Lemieux, 28, has won four scoring titles, two MVP trophies, two Stanley Cup championships, and the hearts of millions of fans.

In January 1993, Lemieux found out he had Hodgkins' disease, a kind of cancer. He went through a month of painful treatments that made him very weak. Some people thought he'd never play again. But he missed only 24 games and still led the league in scoring and his team into the playoffs. After the season, he won his second MVP award and the Masterton Trophy for bravery.

LITTLE HORNET

BIG STING

Hornets guard Muggsy Bogues (right) buzzes around the big guys.

Hoops star Tyrone “Muggsy” Bogues is a Charlotte Hornet, but some opponents think he’s more like a gnat.

At 5’3”, Muggsy is the smallest player in NBA history—more than a foot shorter than all-star teammates Larry Johnson and Alonzo Mourning. Most people would say he’s way too short to play pro basketball. But he’s made his size an advantage: Big players hate to dribble around Muggsy because he’s small and quick. He can run all over the place and steal the ball—an annoying gnat on a court full of big guys. He even got his nickname because he's so good at "mugging" (stealing) the ball. We asked him about making it in the pros:

D.A.: Was it hard for you to make it to the NBA?

M.: Absolutely. I heard a lot of negative comments about me playing basketball. But it was something I wanted. And I've always believed that if you do your best, you can choose your own destiny.

D.A.: Who was your role model?

M.: Well, my Mom was my biggest supporter; she was always there for me. There's nothing wrong with having

DRIBBLING DRILL

Dribbling is a big part of Muggsy's game, and he works on it a lot. "You have to be able to dribble with either hand easily," Muggsy says. Here's one of his favorite exercises: Line up a row of chairs, each a couple of feet apart. Start dribbling with your right hand. Pretend each chair is a defender: Go around the first chair, keeping your body between the chair and the ball. When you get between the first and second chair, switch the ball to your left hand and dribble around the second chair. Switch hands each time you get between the next two chairs, making a "figure eight." "Once you have confidence with the ball, you don't have to look at it all the time," says Muggsy.

—M.R.

MUGG SHOT

Born: January 9, 1965

Mom is 4'11", dad is 5'6", brothers are 5'5" and 5'6", and sister is 5'1". Muggsy says, "We're the 5-foot family."

Played on Baltimore's Dunbar High School basketball team with three other future NBA players: Reggie Williams, David Wingate and the late Reggie Lewis.

One of only two NBA guards to have more than 600 assists in the past two years. First in the league in ratio of assists (711) to turnovers (154).

role models—sports figures, entertainers, whoever—but you should keep in mind that your parents will be with you through the good and bad.

D.A.: What skills do you work on most?

M.: Right now I work on my shooting. Because with the type of team we have, you always have to be ready to hit that shot. But I've always worked on my dribbling, because it's so important when you're a guard.

D.A.: What would you tell kids about becoming a good basketball player?

M.: Basketball has a lot of dimensions: dribbling, shooting, passing and being a team player. To be a good player you have to work on all those areas. No matter how tall you are, you have to be able to dribble. And even if you're a guard, you have to know how to rebound or how to keep the player you're guarding from getting the rebound. If you practice and perfect every part of your game, you'll go a long way.

ULTRA HOT: OK, X-fans, get ready for the first-ever Ultra X-Men cards. Now you can collect all your favorite mutants in the glossy, high-quality Ultra card format. Here's the 411: The set contains 150 cards, including all the X-Men and X-villains in full-color paintings by top artists like Glen Fabry and Dan Brereton. Plus, there's a 13-card subset featuring Wolverine's greatest battles. Hot tip: Be on the lookout for another Marvel set this spring.

AYE CARUMBA!: Get the scoop on all the characters from Bongo Comics in the new Simpsons set. Coolest bonus: Simpsons temporary tattoos. Where will you stick yours?

KICK THIS AROUND: It's the world's biggest sporting event—bigger than the Super Bowl or the World Series. It's soccer's World Cup, and this year it will be held in the U.S. for the first time. Get a head start on keeping the players straight with Upper Deck's World Cup USA card set. In the 165-card set you get 98 of the world's top players, including the U.S. team, plus playing tips, and nine hologram stickers of the game's greatest superstars.
